CORRESPONDENCE BETWEEN EPI-GDV AND ASTROLOGY

James Hopson, inspire@inspiringhealth.net

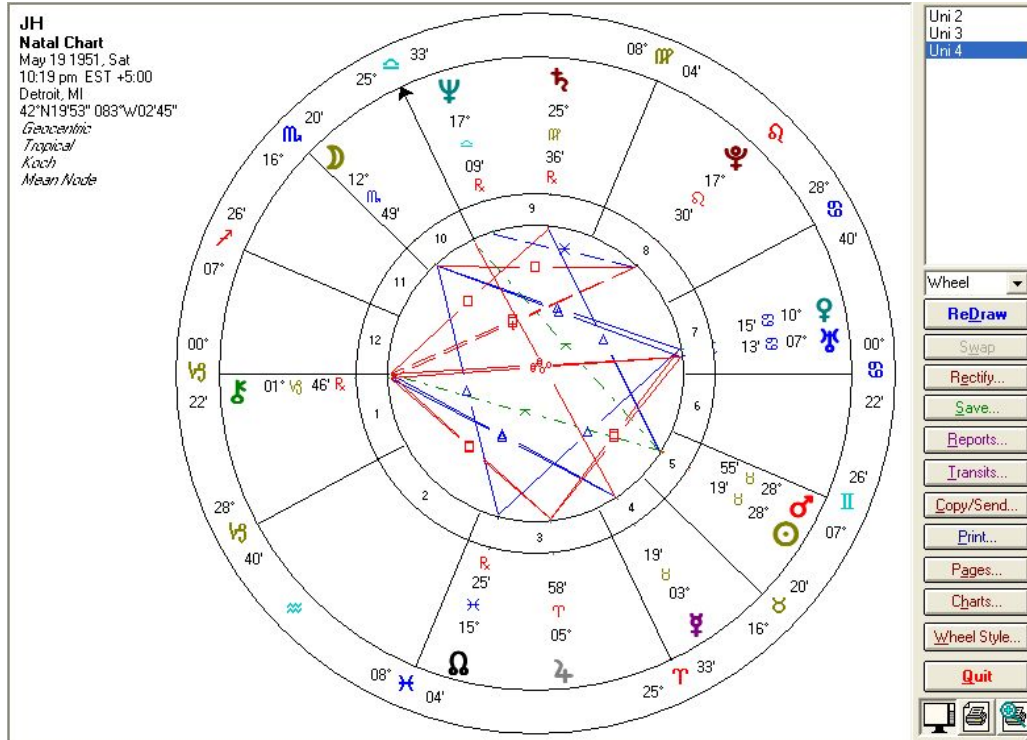

For hundreds of years astrologers were able to give insight into psychological and physiological health issues which had the potential to manifest into disease states or imbalances. Up until the 17th century there was no separation between astrology and health. You could not have one without the other. Hippocrates once said, “A physician without a knowledge of astrology can not rightly call himself a physician”. For centuries, many of humanity's greatest thinkers such as Galen, Aristotle, Culpeper and Paracelsus all explored the relationship between medicine and astrology. As humanity evolved science and medicine became more linked with one another. Astrology, which once was a respected profession, became increasingly marginalized as scientists were not able to show a connection to human disease using scientific methods. In fact, they refused to attempt such research. Astrology, along with other ancient wisdom, was regarded as apriori, quackery and mere superstition. However, with the advent of the EPI-GDV camera, practitioners can now blend the old and new sciences with consistent accuracy. Patterns are easily seen and detected, as you will see in the coming pages. Now these patterns can be identified, which the ancient astrologers were doing hundreds of years ago and can be corroborated scientifically, well before the onset of symptoms of disease.

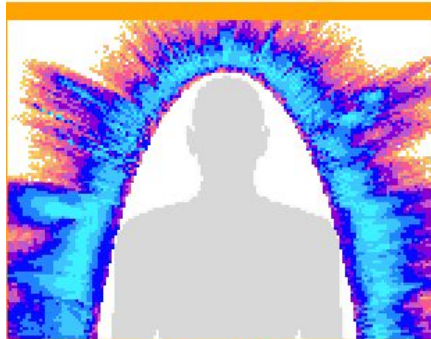

For the last 7 years I have been observing a direct correspondences between the astrological archetypes as related to health and the images produced by the EPI-GDV technology.

Case History 1: 60 year old male

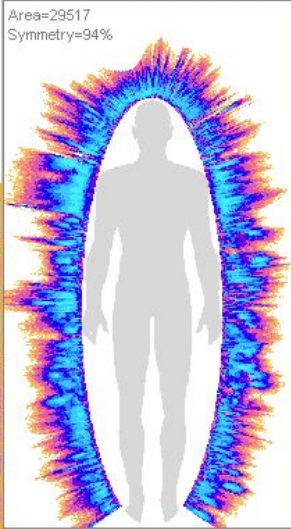

This person has the Sun, Mercury and Mars in Taurus in the 5th House. What does this mean? Taurus is often found to relate to the throat or thyroid. The 5th House corresponds to the heart. He also has the Moon in Scorpio which is the ruler of the 8th House. Both Scorpio and the 8th House relate to the intestinal tract which would include the rectum as well. If you look first at the GDV Energy Field it is clear to see that there is some abnormal activity around both the heart and the throat/thyroid area. In looking at the GDV Diagram the two main areas which stand out are both the rectum and the throat/thyroid area again. These correspondances are connected in this case with both the psychological as well as physical field.

The strongest correspondences are found in astrological charts if the Sun, Moon or Ascendant are involved. Another stronger marker for correlation is if the person has a stellium of planets in their chart. A stellium is a conjunction of three or more planets.

Case History 2: 37 year old female.

The woman has a stellium pattern in her chart. She has four planets in Scorpio in the 9th house including the Sun, Venus, Mars and Uranus. Scorpio has relates to both the reproductive system as well as the intestinal tract. The 9th House has to do with the liver and in this case she exhibits both of these issues. The other area that is shown here has to do with the Throat/Thyroid. For this it takes a bit more astrological knowledge to see. The 2nd house has to do with the throat/thyroid and the ruler of the 2nd house, which is Neptune. So one must look to aspects with Neptune to understand how the throat/thyroid functions. In this case, Neptune aspects the Moon directly which then indicates weakness in the thyroid, which is also true for this woman. Neptune also corresponds with weakness.

In the GDV Diagram below see the most stressed area on the left being the rectum and the right the liver. This relates to both Scorpio and to the 9th House.

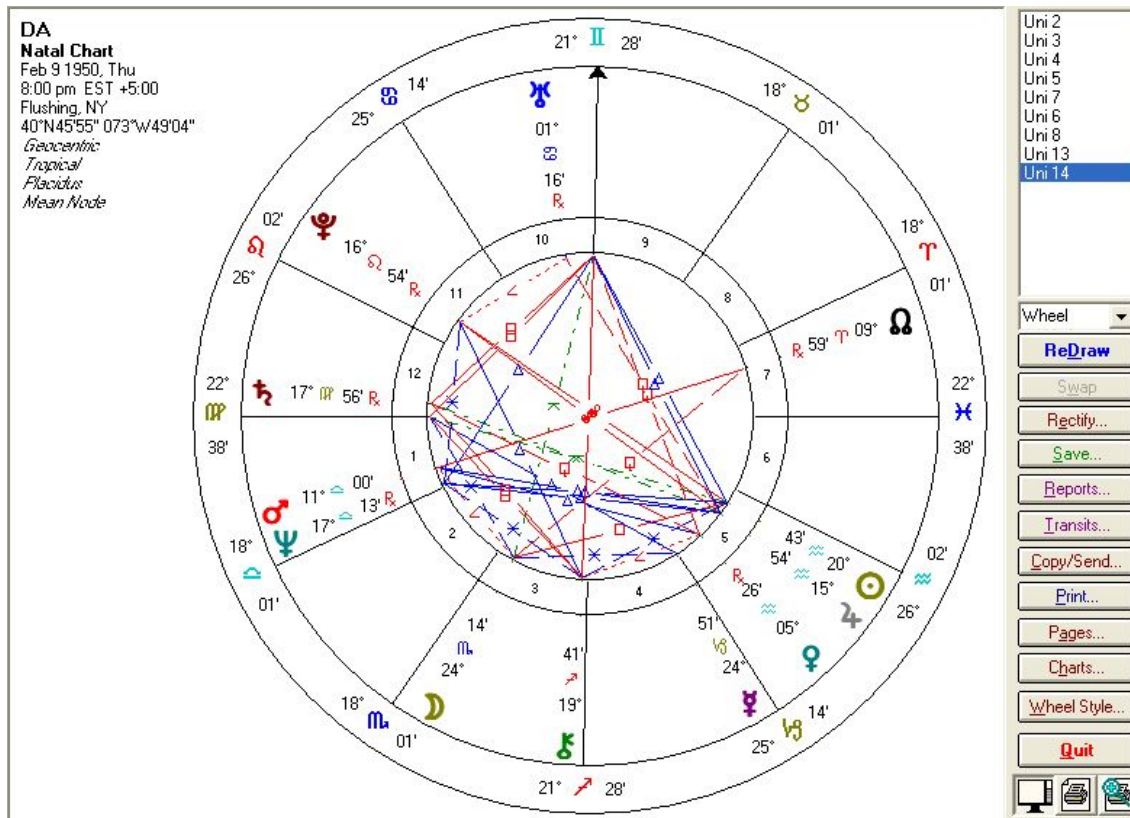

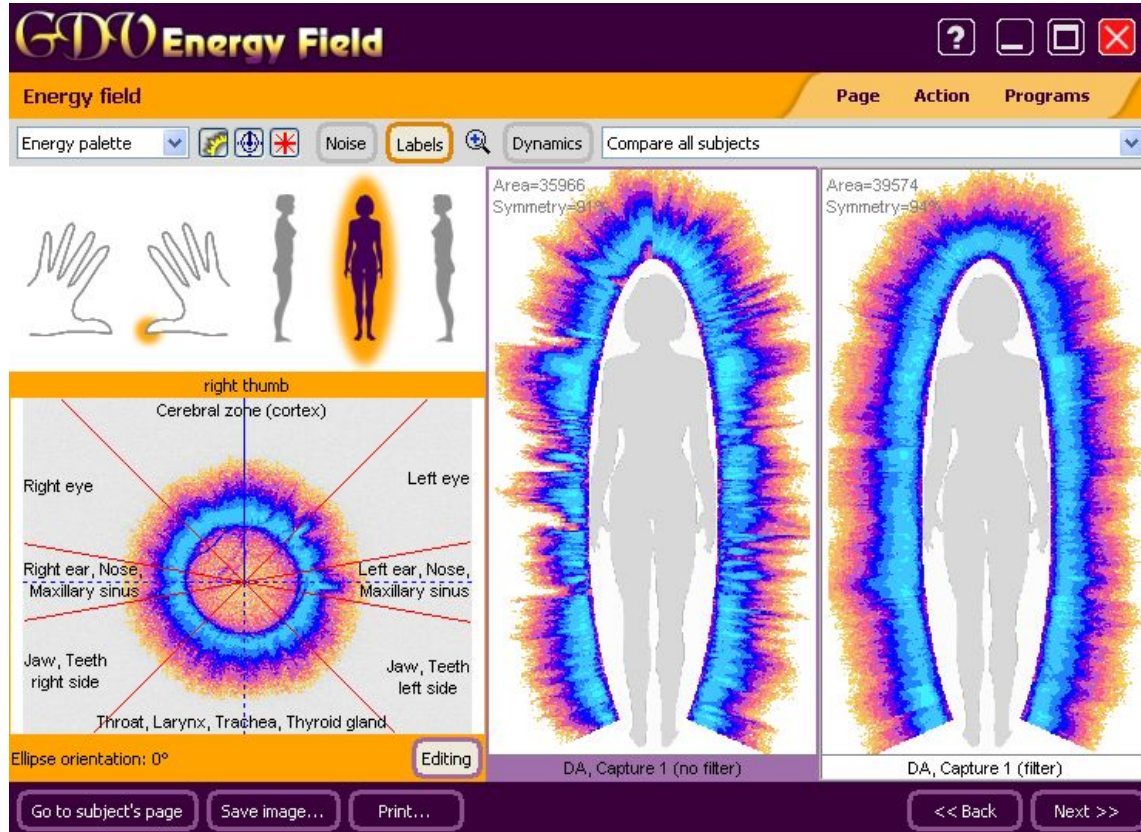

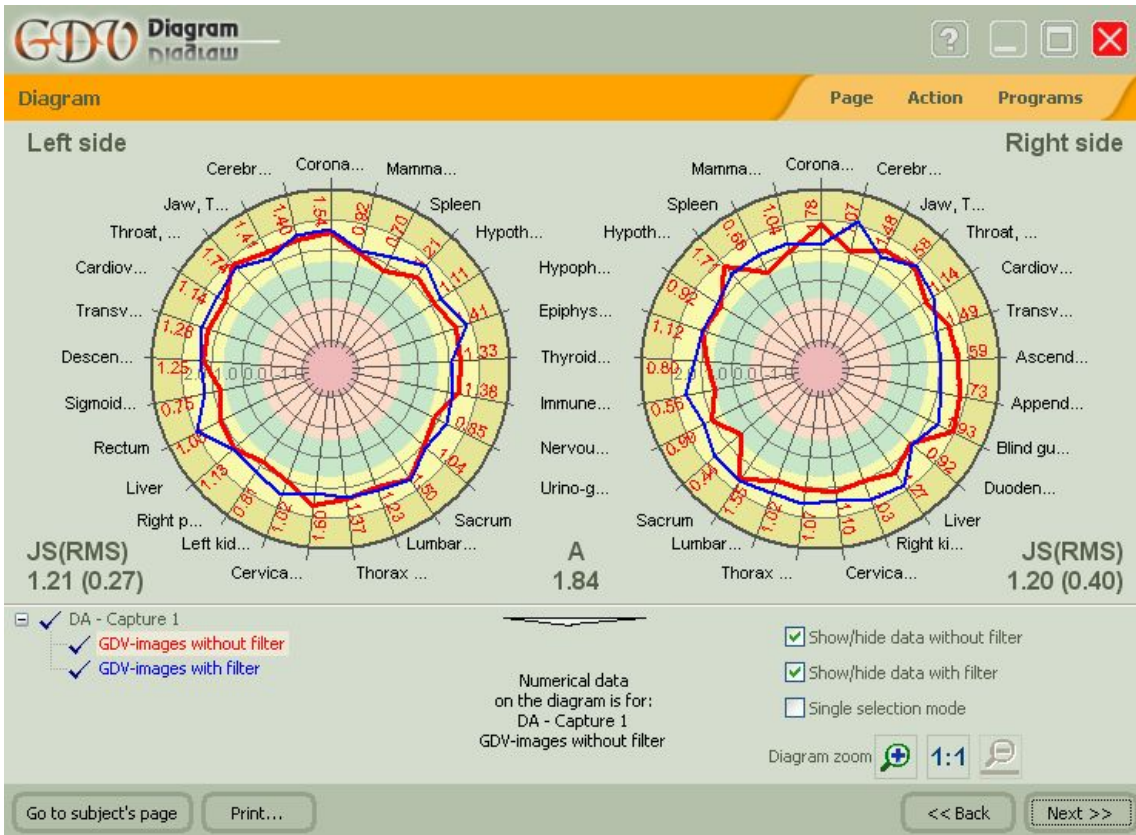

NOTE: This GDV Diagram and GDV Energy Field only shows fields with filter, which indicates information having to do with the physical body more so than the psycho-emotional body.

One of the things I have learned over time is that the archetypes can manifest in either by house, sign, planet or aspect. They seem to have no limitation about how they present themselves. However, most medical astrological texts are more limiting in their description.

Case History 3: 61 year old female

This case is interesting. She has 3 planets in the 5th house, which has to do with the heart. It is also in the sign of Aquarius which rules circulation. Both of which are affected in the images. It is clear to see that the GDV Diagram for this case is excess on both the right and left as well as from the psychological (without filter) and the physical (with filter). Astrologically we look at the aspects between the Sun, Moon and Pluto. Pluto itself lends to being extreme or excessive and the Sun and the Moon have the greatest influence on our overall health. Pluto can also indicate trauma or an area where there is constant stress.

She also has a Mars-Neptune conjunction. Mars rules the adrenal glands and/or one's drive in life. Neptune can be a sign of poisoning or atrophy and is related to spirituality. If you look closely at both the images with and without the filter one can see that there is a clear weakness in the adrenal gland area. This individual also leads a very spiritually oriented life. Here is a case where we can see the aspects manifesting as the imbalance vs. the astrological houses or signs.

I have limited my overall discussion to more of the physiological aspects in relating the astrological charts to both the GDV Diagram and the GDV Energy Field but one could easily extend those correlations as well with the psychological correspondences and the various archetypal patterns they represent astrologically.

Conclusion

For those that are skilled at understanding how to read the heavens, an astrological chart will provide a plethora of information when compared to the EPI-GDV images. Do all cases show correspondences? This will depend on the degree of imbalance at the time of the EPI-GDV screening. The more out of balance an individual is the more likely you will see direct relationship between a person's astrological chart and the EPI-GDV images.

There is an ancient metaphysical saying, "As above, so below". This implies that everything happening in the heavens has a definite relationship here on Earth. Since astrology itself is an archetypal representation of everything in the universe then it too must have some relationship to the human body as well as to the dynamics we experience here on Earth. Now with the assistance of the EPI-GDV technology we can now prove what up to this time has been impossible to prove: the planets, their aspects and position in the heavens at the time of our birth have a direct correspondence with both our psychological and physiological well-being. Now we can know without a shadow of doubt that what the ancients understood regarding medical astrology was both true and valid.
